

'SA must build supercomputers'

DATA | Top global physicists and engineers will meet at Wits University next week to work on how to manage the vast data output from projects such as the Square Kilometre Array radio telescope. "It is now of strategic importance that we develop our own electronics ... to build our own, affordable supercomputers," said Prof Bruce Mellado, co-chair of the workshop. Tamar Kahn

This material has been copied under a DALRO licence and is not for resale or retransmission.